IMPACT: State

Summary of Legislation: This bill allows a state employee of the executive branch to take a paid leave of absence for the purpose of being an organ donor or bone marrow donor.

Effective Date: July 1, 2002.

Explanation of State Expenditures: This bill allows certain state employees to take up to five days of paid leave to serve as a bone marrow donor or up to 30 days paid leave to serve as an organ donor. The impact of this bill is indeterminable and will be contingent upon the number of employees who choose to become a donor as a result of the provision, the position of the donor, and whether or not the agency for which the donor works will need to pay overtime to other employees or hire a temporary replacement. The number of employees seeking leave through this provision is expected to be minimal.

Background Information: According to the United Network for Organ Sharing, there were 4,684 organ donations made from living donors in 1999. The majority (4,466) of these were kidney donations. During the same year in Indiana there were 146 kidney transplants. It is not known how many of these Indiana transplants involved a living kidney donor. There were approximately 1,700 bone marrow transplants in the U.S. in 2000. At any given time approximately 3,000 patients search the National Marrow Donor Program's database of 4.7 M volunteer potential donors for a match.
